A few words from Pat Johnson,

I have been supplying copper bowls to my students and other enamellers in the UK for twenty years. Recently I found a company in India which stamps out copper bowls, a technique which produces much better bowls than the spun bowls I had been working with. The supplier requires an order of 50 each of the bowls. I sell small orders to enamellers at a small margin.

I occasionally have clients from outside the UK. This is fine, I have already sent bowls to Australia but the final cost of the bowls was really high. It would be better if an agent could be found in the destination country, who could order directly from India.

In order to facilitate sales, I have included two email contacts at the top of the file: Large orders – contact aamir@decorexports.com. Small orders – contact patjohnson51@googlemail.com .

In the absence of a local agent, I would encourage groups of enamellers to combine small orders to reach the 50 bowl limit and work with the Indian supplier directly.

Happy to receive feed back on the bowls and the supply there of.

Regards,

Pat
